Help to Hope Workshop

1 out of 4 women will experience a pregnancy loss in her lifetime, and as many as 1 in 5 couples will experience infertility. In addition, 1 out of 4 women by age 45 will have experienced an abortion, whether or not the father of the baby is informed. Reproductive loss surrounds us, and the grief it brings is often difficult to express, affecting not only women but also men, family members, and loved ones.

There is hope. Come learn how to help those who grieve.

Reproductive Loss Network brings a Biblical response to a grieving world through educating, equipping, and encouraging individuals who support those touched by reproductive loss.

This workshop includes:

- Understanding the impact of reproductive loss
- Knowing where loss and life connect
- Recognizing the biblical model of grieving with hope
- Learning healing language with examples
- Joining others in a Christ-centered healing network

Wonderful course! I truly appreciated the heart and care of the instructors. Their commitment to the sufficiency of Scripture was refreshing. I wish all church leaders could hear the wisdom they have to share. You're on the right track. Keep doing what you're doing!

Tanya Flores and Tricia Lewis bring over 30 years of combined experience and serve with only one goal in mind: to bring Biblical help, hope, and healing to hearts broken by reproductive loss.

Tanya Flores

Tanya is a certified counselor with the Association of Certified Biblical Counselors (ACBC) and is the Director of Client Services + Education at a medical pregnancy clinic outside Sacramento, CA. She leads a team of Reproductive Grief Care Advocates who provide care and support for men and women experiencing loss due to miscarriage, stillbirth, hysterectomy, infertility, and abortion. Tanya also serves as a lead biblical counselor at her local church. From her extensive years in training and advocacy, she is passionate about sharing her expertise through co-founding the Reproductive Loss Network. She is devoted to increasing awareness and care for reproductive grief throughout churches and community organizations.

Tricia Lewis, Ph.D.

Tricia Lewis is a national and international grief care educator and co-founder of the Reproductive Loss Network. Tricia had the privilege of spending many years as an executive director for a pregnancy clinic in Northern California. She now provides biblical grief education to individuals and groups, especially in pregnancy help organizations. Tricia holds a Ph.D. in Counseling and Psychology with concentrations in trauma, crisis, and grief.

We would love to connect with you and strengthen our network of biblical care for those grieving reproductive loss. Let us know how we can come alongside you and support your ministry.
